Brush beige, brown, black, and a little white in long strokes. Use large brushes.

2

Wet-blend these together with long strokes. Do not over-blend.

3

Do you have a woodgraining tool? If so, drag it slowly through the blended areas sporadically to create woodgrain. Rock it slowly as you drag it..

4

Go back with a liner brush and add knots. Swirl the grain a little around then knots.

5

Cut one or two strips of luan or plywood at 8' long and 12" wide. These are spacers. When the wetblend / woodgrain layer is dry, use the spacers to add black lines maybe $\frac{3}{4}$ " thick with soft edges to differentiate between boards.
